

Engagement Photography Packages

The amount of photos that you'll receive at the end of your session depends on the package you choose. Make sure to discuss this with your photographer before booking.

Engagement sessions are a fun and exciting way to tell your love story. They can also be used for a variety of purposes, including save the dates and wedding invitations.

It's a great way to get to know your photographer

Many photographers offer different Engagement Photography Packages, including digital photos and prints. If you're not sure what you want, be sure to clarify with your photographer. They'll appreciate that you're clear about what you want before the session starts.

When it comes to engagement photo outfits, it's important for the couple to feel comfortable and natural. If the couple is uncomfortable or uneasy, it will show in the pictures. It's also important to choose a location that speaks to the couple. It could be a special spot in their neighborhood, a favorite cafe, or even their home.

A good way to find out what the couple wants is by asking them to send you photos of their favorite engagement poses. These photos can then be used for their save-the-date cards and wedding invitations. It's a great way to make the process move much more smoothly. Then, the couple can focus on getting excited for their big day.

It's a great way to get to know your partner

Your photographer will work with you to create a plan that allows you to capture photos in locations that have meaning for you. And if you have any questions about what to wear, your photographer will be there to help! The most important thing is to relax and be yourself. If you feel uncomfortable or try to act too serious, your photographer will pick up on this. The best photographs come when you're relaxed and having fun with your one true love.

It's a good idea to book an engagement session about a year in advance of your wedding. This way, you'll be able to use the photos for your save-the-dates and have plenty of time for any rescheduling that might need to happen. You also want to give yourself enough time to edit the photos so you can send them out when it's convenient for your guests. This will reduce the stress of the day and ensure that your photos turn out perfect.

It's a great way to express your personalities

During engagement photos, you can express your unique personalities and show off your love for one another. This is a fun and exciting time in your relationship, so don't be afraid to let your personality shine through. Your wedding photographer can help you highlight your favorite things about each other, and you can even incorporate some of your personal style into the shoot.

The location you choose for your engagement photography session can also help tell your story. For example, if you want to show off your love for adventure, you might choose a mountain-top view or a scenic river. Or, if your relationship is more casual, you might opt for a park or cafe that holds a special place in your heart.

Make sure to pick a location that has good lighting for your engagement photos. Ideally, you should take them about two hours before sunset to get the best results. You can also choose a spot that's meaningful to you, such as your first date spot or the place where you got engaged.

It's a great way to create a cohesive look for your wedding

When you choose a photographer for your engagement session, ask about their pricing and what is included. Many photographers offer packages that include a certain number of digital photos and prints. Others also have additional extras like mugs or wallet prints. Decide how you want to use your engagement photos before choosing a package. Your parents may love framed photos as home decor, while your friends might appreciate a photo book for their weddings.

When choosing your outfit for the shoot, keep in mind that neutral colors look best on camera. Bright, vivid colors can be distracting and don't always photograph well. Try to avoid clashing patterns, as they can be difficult to coordinate on film.

Lastly, be sure to talk to your photographer about any rituals that are going to take place during the wedding. This will help them capture the most authentic shots possible. You can even ask them to capture videography as well!